GREETINGS FROM VENEZUELA

I'm writing just to use you as a channel to tell my loved father that I love him. He has been reading MAD Magazine since 1966, when he got married and had his first son. Vicente Lecuna is the most wonderful father and I wanted to tell him this through your magazine because I'm sure he will get it before The New England Journal of Medicine.

Lucia Lecuna, Caracas, Venezuela

Lucky Lecuna — Subscribing since 1966? We love Vicente Lecuna too! Though we must question exactly what kind of father he was if his offspring choose the pages of our magazine to tell him how much they love him. Whatever happened to the notion of a basket of fruit, a Whitman Sampler or even a nice Hallmark card? Hmmm, as we say in español — tu es el cheapo! —Ed.

POOR JEFFIE WANTS TLC

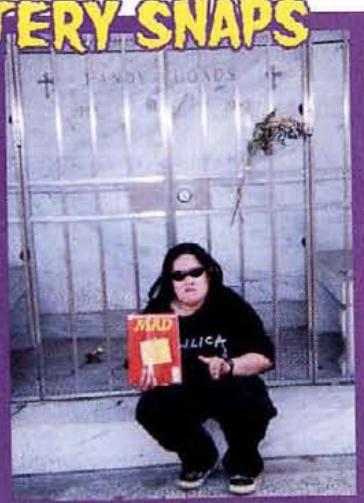

When are you guys going to do a parody of TLC's Trading Spaces? I am a 20-year-old male and I love the show. I am completely straight. Please don't make fun of me.

Jeff H., Mesa, AZ

Jeffie — We'll make a deal with you. We'll make fun of Trading Spaces when you stop kidding yourself. You follow? —Ed.

MAD CEMETERY SNAPS

Dovetailing very nicely with our Ozzy Osbourne article on page 31 comes this Cemetery Snap of former Ozzy guitarist Randy Rhoads' grave sent in by Carmen Robles of Redlands, CA. As you may know, Randy has been dead since 1982 after a plane he was joyriding in crashed into Ozzy's tour bus and rented mansion (true story!) Some viewers of MTV's The Osbournes have wondered if Ozzy has been dead from the neck up since 1982! Keep riding that crazy train, Carmen, and enjoy your one-year subscription!

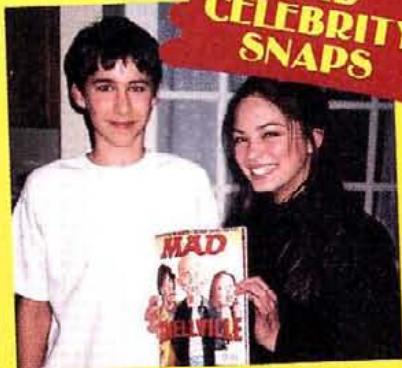

OPERATION ENDURING LAUGHTER

My name is Captain Eric J. Moore. I am currently with Alpha Company, 7th Battalion, 101st Aviation Regiment as the maintenance officer. We "Pachyderms" are providing Chinook support to the 101st Airborne and to just about everyone else here in Afghanistan as well. I am writing to let you know that MAD has found its way into Afghanistan with many a soldier, be it hand carried or sent by care package. Subscribers such as myself won't let a war stop MAD magazine. I was wondering if you could do us a favor. Could the gang or Alfred E. Neuman send some sort of gesture of support to us Pachyderms? Our maintenance crews on flight platoons are working harder than ever to guarantee mission success and would in turn like to send a thank you to MAD for being there at the end of the day for a smile. We'll be patiently waiting in Qandahar enjoying the blowing dust, when we're not working of course!

Eric J. Moore, Afghanistan

Eric — On its way to you at 1600 hours today is a MAD goody bag for you and your fellow servicemen. In the meantime, readers, if you know someone serving in the armed services, why not brighten up these brave men and women's day by buying them a subscription to MAD? If you are too cheap, the least you can do is drop us a letter of support for our troops and we will forward it to Capt. Eric J. Moore. Send your letters to Amy "Operation Enduring Laughter" c/o MAD Magazine, 1700 Broadway, New York, NY 10019. We promise to print a few of the best ones in an upcoming issue, too! —Ed.

MAD CELEBRITY SNAPS

Enclosed is a picture of me with Kristen Kreuk, who plays Lana Lang on Smallville and is featured on the cover of the March, 2002 issue of MAD. Kristen, my sister's friend, agreed to pose with me for this photograph. Please consider me for a free three-year subscription to MAD.

Adam Gilgoff
British Columbia, Canada

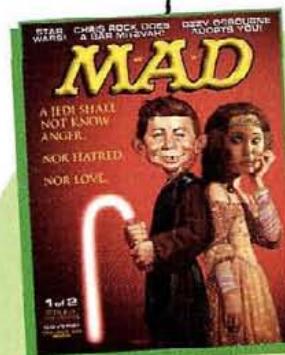

Goff Ball — Consider it a yes! Your three-year subscription is on its way! As for Kristen Kreuk, watch for more of her in MAD next month. Oh my, oh my! —Ed.

THE SCHMUCK OF THE IRISH

I'm Irish and have been reading your magazine for about 2½ years and have a subscription, but when I read "Monroe and... Thanksgiving" (issue #412) I was shocked to see how much you insulted the Irish and our way of life which you know nothing about, because the girl was speaking in a Scottish accent. P.S. If I can't have a free subscription at least print my letter.

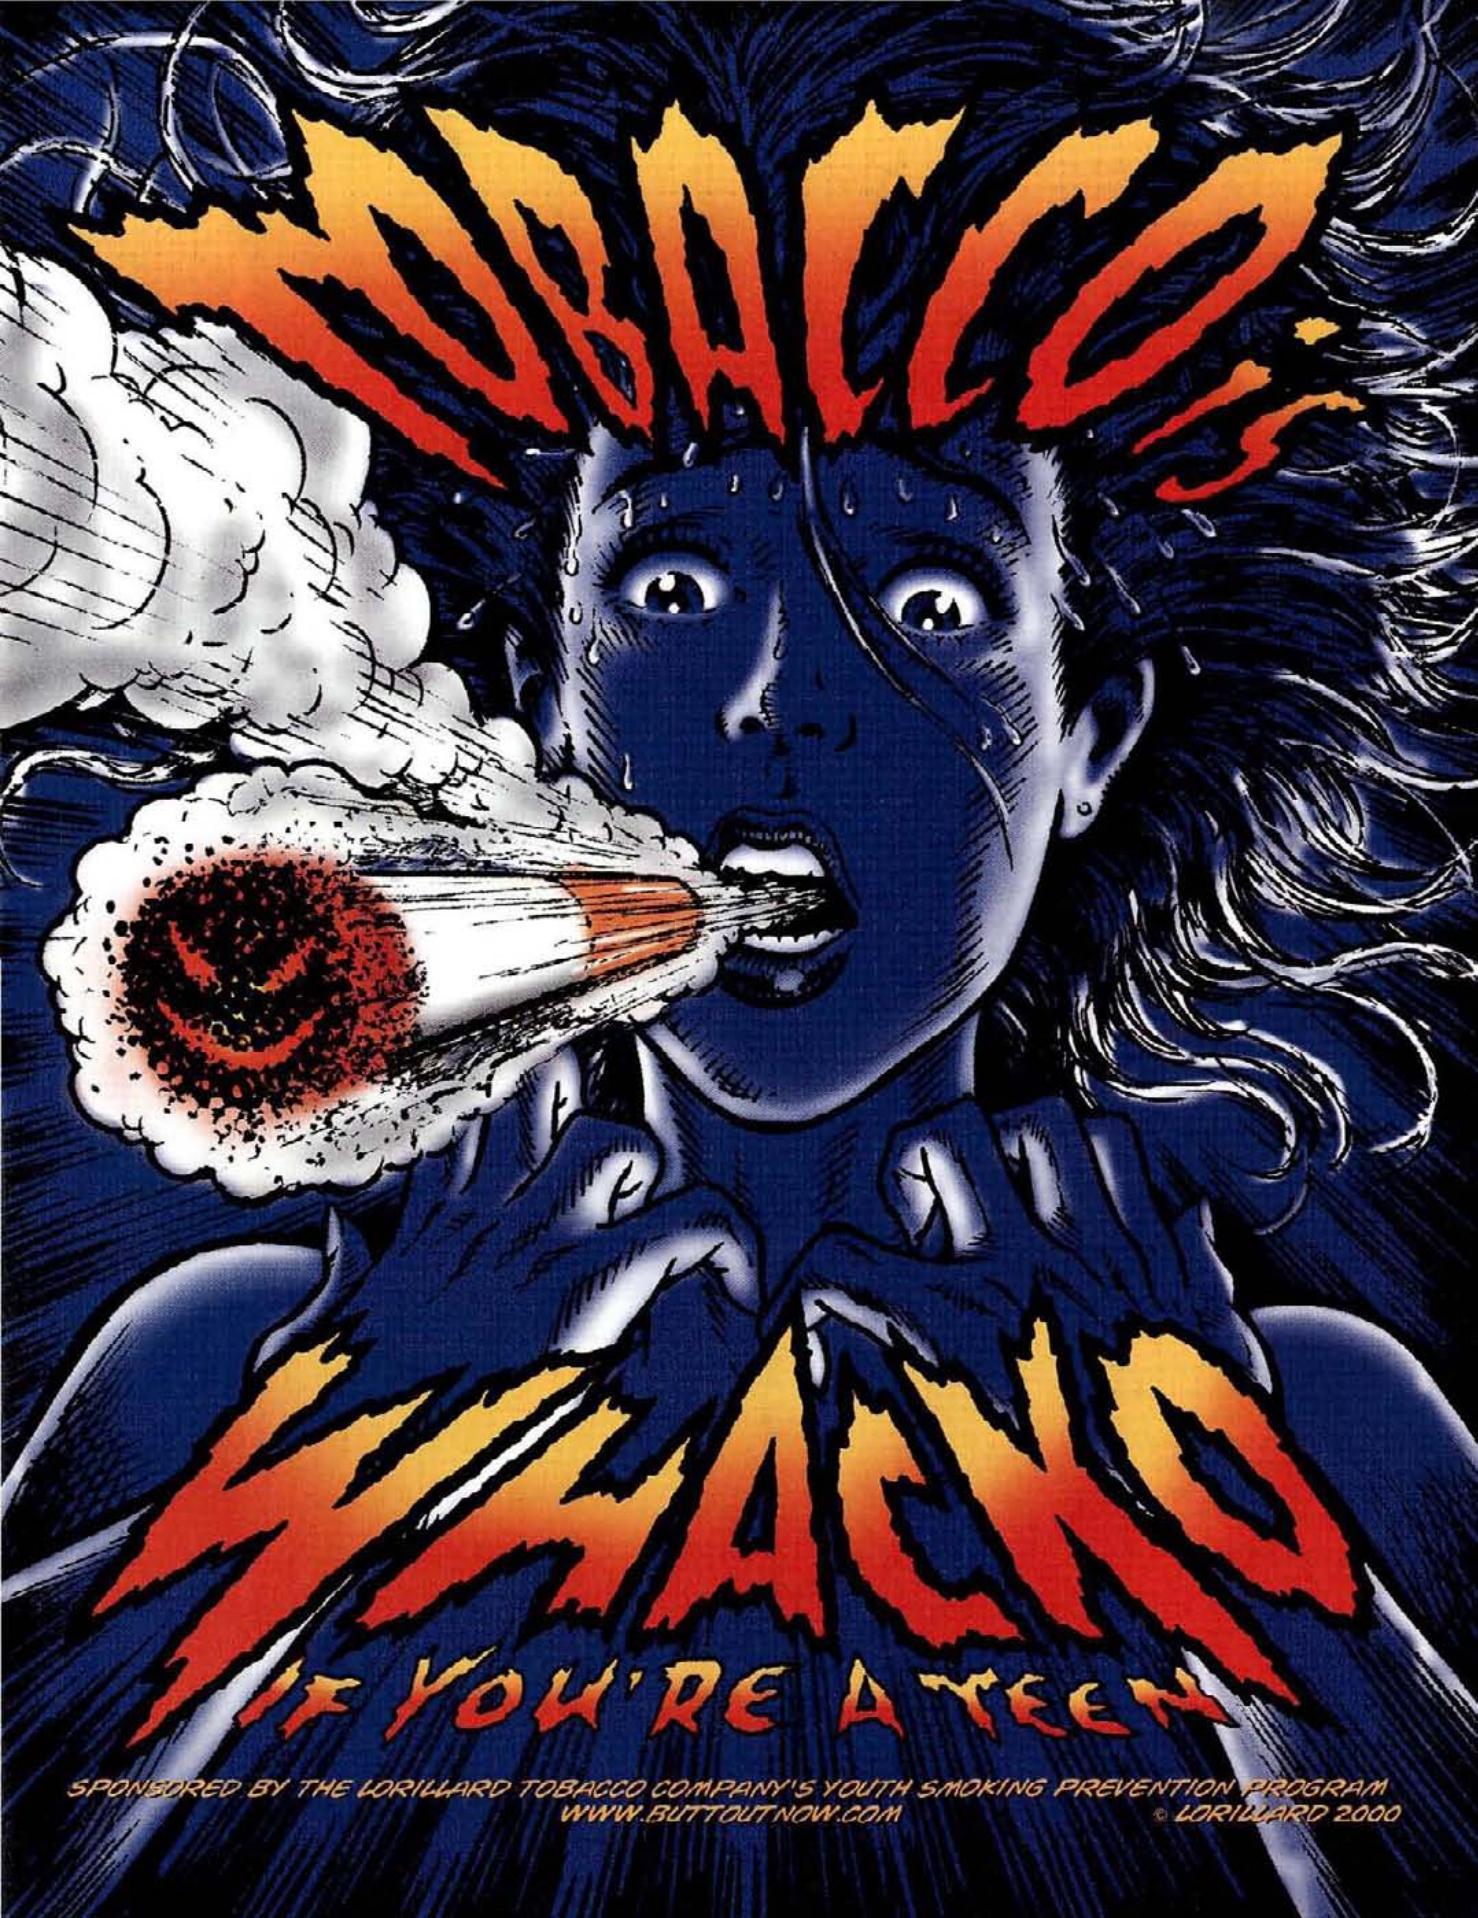

Chris Caffey, Dublin, Ireland

Daffy Caffey — A free subscription? You must be piss-eyed drunk! Did you write this letter from the local pub? Thanks for writing and may the wind always be at your back! —Ed.

ATTACK OF THE CLONES COVERS

For those of you who don't pay attention to the copy on the front of the issue, this is our big Star Wars Jedi Bunch issue, which has not one, but two collector's covers! Two issues means twice the fun for you and twice the profits for us! So make sure you purchase both of them before you go to sleep tonight!

HELIX, THE CHAT

In issue #416, you published a letter sent in by Jim Dewey who tried to be cool and point out one of your mistakes in issue #413. He said that Watson and Crick, who were working on the Human Genome Project, sent the measurements for a strand of DNA to a "machinist" who figured out that it was a double helix. This story is completely bogus and I'll tell you the real story. James Watson and Francis Crick were not the only ones working on the Human Genome Project. Maurice Wilkins and Rosalind Franklin were colleagues of theirs and it was actually Franklin who took the first X-ray of DNA. She was unaware that the picture she took was actually a double helix, but Watson happened to notice it. Franklin did not receive any recognition because she died before the Nobel Prize was given to Watson, Crick and Wilkins. I hope Jimbo is reading this so that he can learn something and give credit where credit is really due.

Mike Faris, Scranton, PA

Mikey — you can talk all about James Watson, Francis Crick, Maurice Wilkins and Rosalind Franklin, but in our book, when you're talking helix, only one name comes to mind...Gold medalist figure skater Sarah Hughes and her astounding triple Helix/triple Lutz combination! Don't get us started about the Salchow! —Ed.

BEATING AROUND THE GEORGE W. BUSH

Well, first it was advertising and color. Yuck. Now it's my Land's End catalog. Alfred E. Neuman is on the cover of their current catalog. You guys are totally selling out. I am afraid to look at my next Enron stockholders report for fear of finding Mr. Neuman attired in a Brooks Brothers blue suit and extolling us on the virtues of investments. What's next, President Bush becoming one of the Usual Gang of Idiots at MAD?

Jeff Idelson, Walnut Creek, CA

Jeffie — What? President Bush joining the Usual Gang of Idiots? That'll happen when Hell freezes over — even we have standards! On a related note, our Human Resources department reports that they have received feelers from Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld's people! —Ed.

MAY THE HORSE BE WITH YOU

As MAD subscribers know, every issue comes in a protective white wrapper (you know, sort of like the things they sanitize toilets in b-level hotels with)! A few months ago, on the wrapper protecting #416, we did a silly little gag about finding a horse in the issue (see photo). Lo and behold, here are some of the letters we received as a result:

I think I found your horse. I'm not really sure if this is the right one, I think it's on the bottom of page eight. Though I'm not sure because there are also horses on pages 40 and 41.

David Aase, Northfield, MN

I have seen horses as beasts of burden and agriculture. I have seen horses as transportation for the poor and playthings for the rich. I have seen horses (and various parts of horses) as symbols of almost everything imaginable. But now you've taken leave of your horse sense and taken a giant step to the rear using horses as a come-on in a senseless search for a winless contest.

Walt Bittle, Citrus Heights, CA

On the black and white cover of issue #416 it says, "find the horse in this issue and win!" Was that talking about the tiny horse in the margin of page eight? If so, what do I win?

Kelly McKean, Baldwin, NY

Now dear readers, here's a little challenge for you — find the three horses' asses on this page! — Ed.

Monroe and... THE FAN CLUB

As many of you remember from MAD #416's Letter and Tomatoes Dept., Ken McClelland of Reston, VA wrote in complaining about Monroe, at which point we immediately made him President of the Monroe Fan Club. As we expected, mail came pouring in from readers who wanted to join the official fan club and some who didn't! Here's a sampling of what some of those readers said about Monroe and President McClelland:

Allow me to be the first member of your Monroe Fan Club. He is funny and we have lot in common.

Andy Anderson, Lakeland, FL

Dear Ken — I completely agree with you. Monroe deserves to be deleted from the pages of MAD. Do not let the editors push you around and do not accept their nomination as fan club president. Instead, become the President of the Get Rid of Monroe Club.

Darryl Gonzalez, Severn, MD

I will drink Ken McClelland's nose snot if you agree to remove the article "Monroe" from the pages of your otherwise very fine publication.

Rebecca Adamson, Sammamish, WA

I would very much like to join the Monroe Fan Club. I would be very happy if I could become a member.

Taylor Rothbell, Montpelier, VT

Put me in the Monroe Fan Club please.

Chris Penner, Manitoba, Canada

It displeased me to see that in the April issue, MAD #416, that your Monroe hate letter was printed. I respect and recognize your opinion, but I must challenge your insight with this simple question: What the heck is wrong with you? Are you crazy or something? Put Monroe in the back? How dare you suggest such a thing. Even after your criminal act, MAD was kind enough to ignore your request and even make you President of the Official Monroe Fan Club. How did you get to be so damn lucky? Anyway, now that you are the President and all, I guess I have to forgive you for your crime against humanity. No hard feelings. Oh, and while you are at it, add me to the fan club list.

Nick David, Seattle, WA

If it is any consolation, I think you are doing a great job as President. And to add legitimacy to your term as our leader, we can cite the record of the President of our nation, the honorable Bush; who was chosen not by his constituents, but by a bunch of idiots. Here is to a long and prosperous reign.

Printed in U.S.A.

Call us crazy, but it seems that the characters in Star Wars Episode II: Attack of the Clones are beginning to remind us of television's most popular family — no, not the Osbournes, Ewok head, the Bradys! There's the handsome Greg Brady type who's always getting into trouble (Anakin), the pretty Marcia Brady type who's always changing her outfits (Padmé), the well-meaning but kind of dull dad Mike Brady type (Obi Wan), and even the funny-looking, wrinkly Alice the maid type (Yoda)! So we decided to kick off this special section of six Star Wars articles with a theme song borrowed (well, okay, stolen) from that other bunch! Sing along as we introduce...

The Jedi Bunch

(SUNG TO THE TUNE OF... GOOD LORD, DO WE REALLY HAVE TO TELL YOU?)

Here's the story.
Of a sexy girl queen.
Living in a galaxy
far, far away
When she was almost killed by rival forces
She knew she couldn't stay

Here's the story.
Of a young Skywalker
Who was learn-ing The
Force both night and day
Taught by three Knights,
playing with Light Sabers
It all seemed kind of gay

Then the people and their robots and the muppet
Got together and decided over brunch
That this group, must somehow fight the Dark Side
That's the way they all
became the Jedi Bunch,

The Jedi Bunch -
(You'll lose your lunch!)
That's the way - they became
the Jedi Bunch!

Description

Here's an out-of-this-world lot of original Star Wars: Attack of the Clones ephemera Anakin Skywalker would give his right hand for! Props and other such materials used in the production of Star Wars films are rarely made available to the public (at least legally), so that's all the more reason to bid now and bid high and hope you win, pay, and can take possession of these items before a power even greater than the Force steps in and shuts this auction down—the Lucasfilm Legal Department! Lot includes:

- A fascinating shooting script of the new film featuring many scenes ultimately deleted from the final version and therefore conveniently not subject to any sort of verification. Script pages are littered with indecipherable scribbled notes and doodles in the margins, unattached to one another, and in complete random order in an effort to best emulate the particularly over-complicated, disjointed, confusing feel of this latest entry in the Star Wars canon of feature films.
- One full quart (32 ounces) of Kenny Baker's sweat collected from the bottom of R2-D2 after a day of shooting in Tunisia.
- Sixty-eight pounds of prop Bantha dung made from a mixture of elephant manure and lasagna noodles seen (blurred) in a quick pan of the Tusken Raider village during Sc. 322-A.
- RARE! An INCREDIBLE FULL SET of Clone Trading Cards. Each card in this pre-production run features a close-up color photo of every clone that appears in Star Wars Episode II: Attack of the Clones! The manufacturer later cancelled production when research showed that there was little interest, even in the most obsessed, die-hard Star Wars fans, of collecting 10,000 identical trading cards.

All items to be shipped securely in cushioning materials composed of shredded first draft copies of the script that featured Jar Jar Binks in a more substantial role.

ARTIST: SCOTT BRICHER

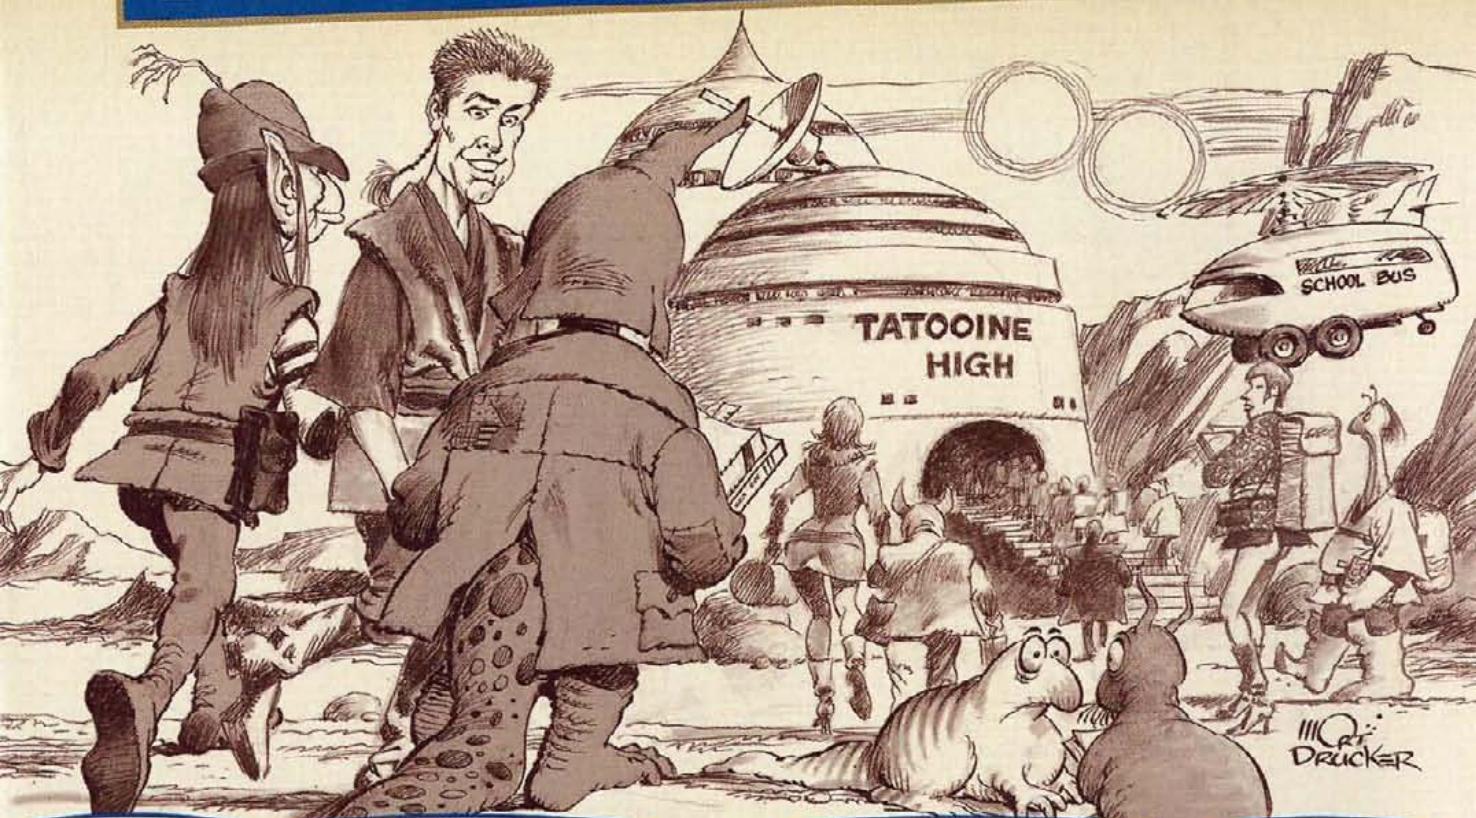

WRITER: SCOTT MAIKO

MAY THE COURSE BE WITH YOU DEPT.

When Star Wars Episode I concluded, Anakin Skywalker was a precocious nine-year-old boy. When we meet him again in Episode II, he's already 19! It seems that George Lucas would just like to zip right past what, if he's anything like us, are the most difficult and awkward years in Anakin's life. The years when he's no longer a boy, yet not quite a man. The years of inner turmoil, confusion and, not to mention, (GAK!) puberty. Yeah, Lucas may have skipped over them, but WE won't! Join us as we pay a visit to...

ANAKIN SKYWALKER THE HIGH SCHOOL YEARS

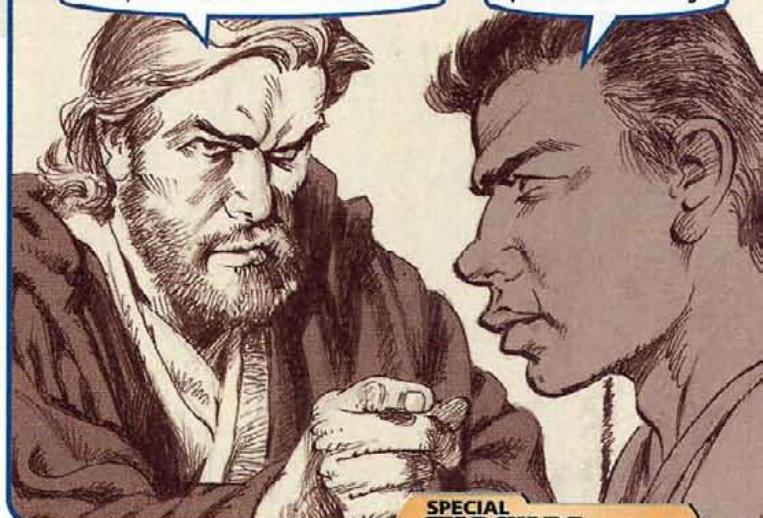

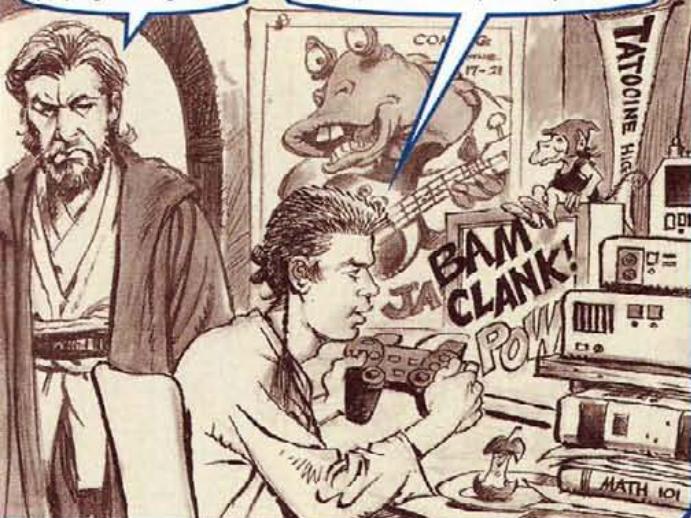

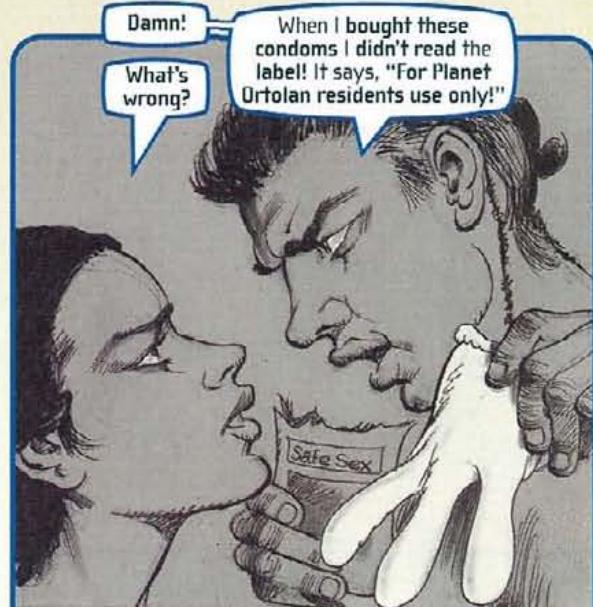

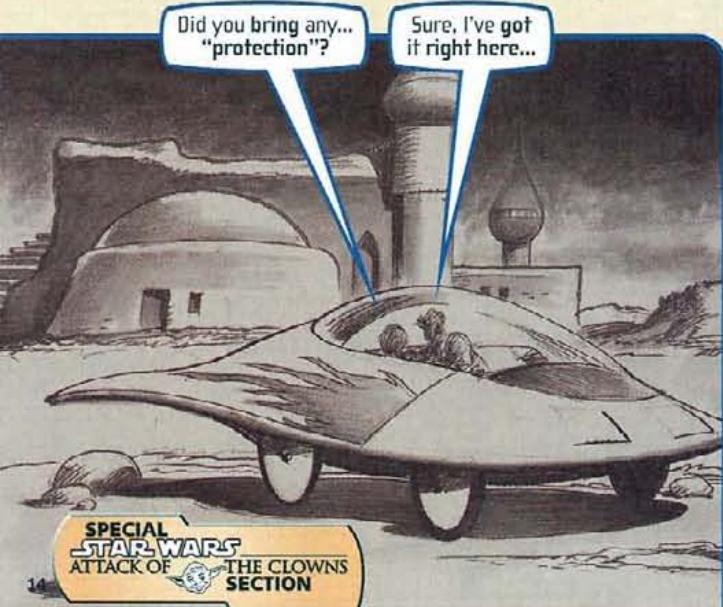

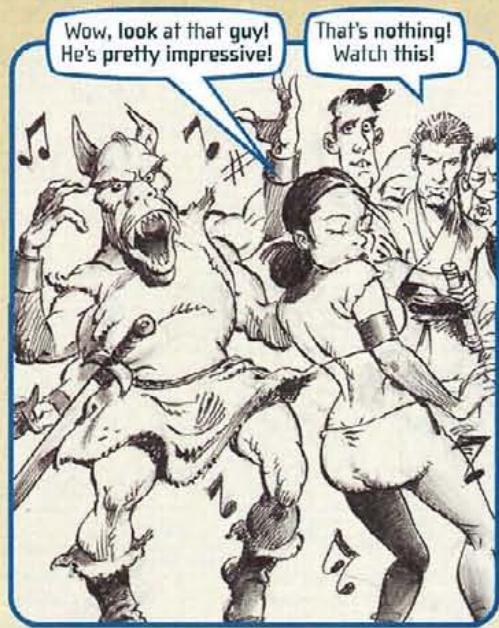

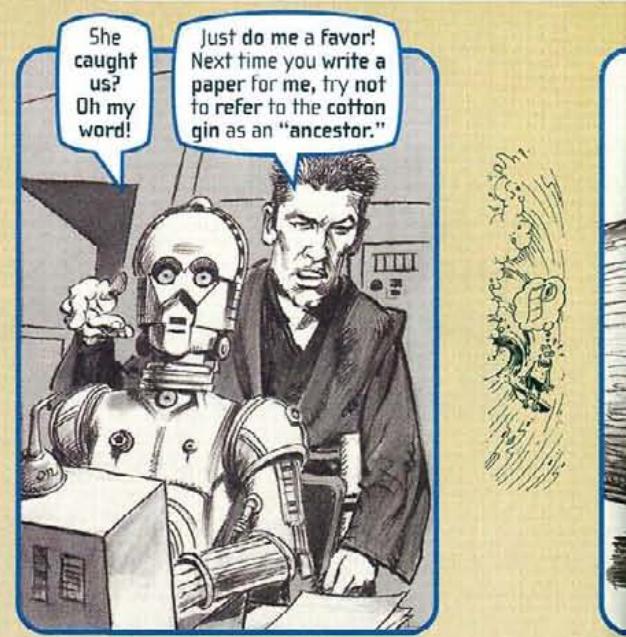

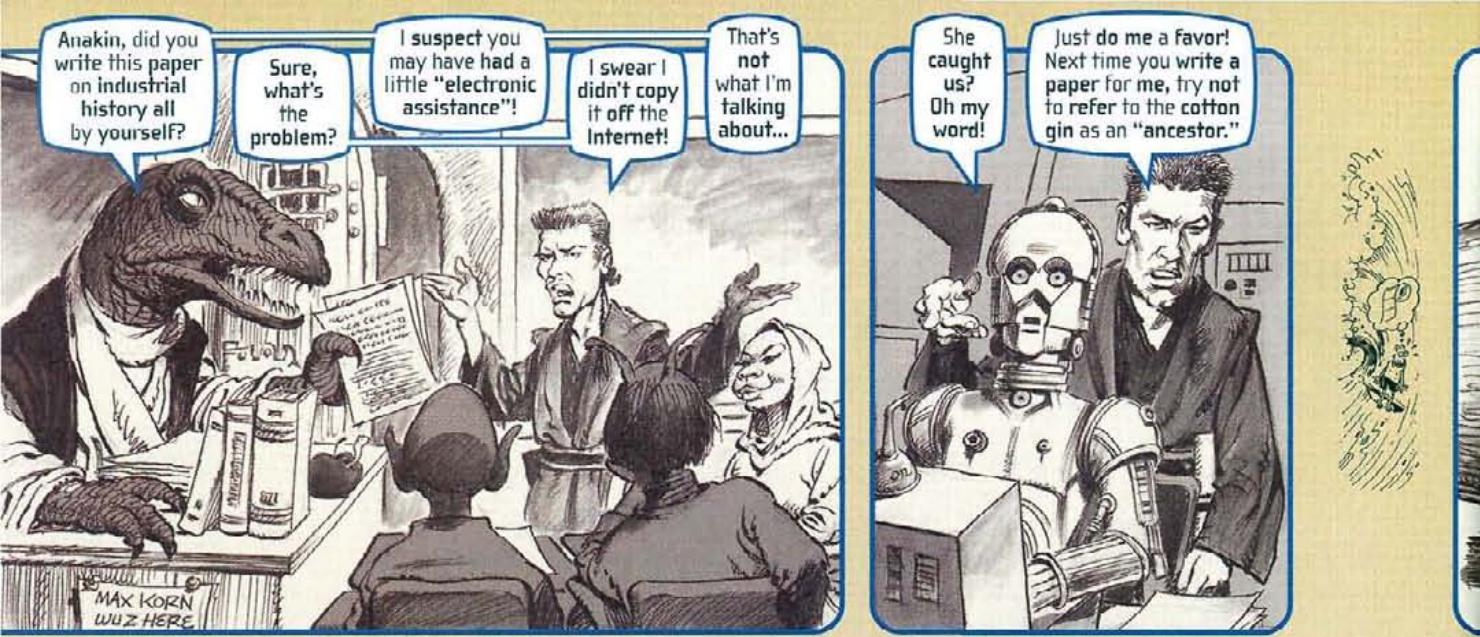

Anakin, how many times have I told you I don't like you wasting the entire day playing video games!

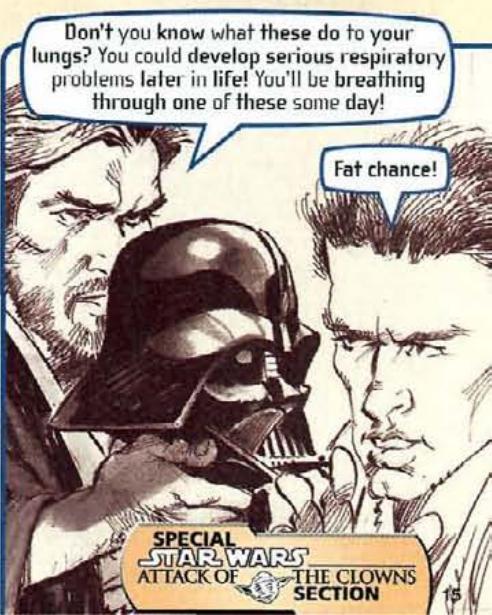

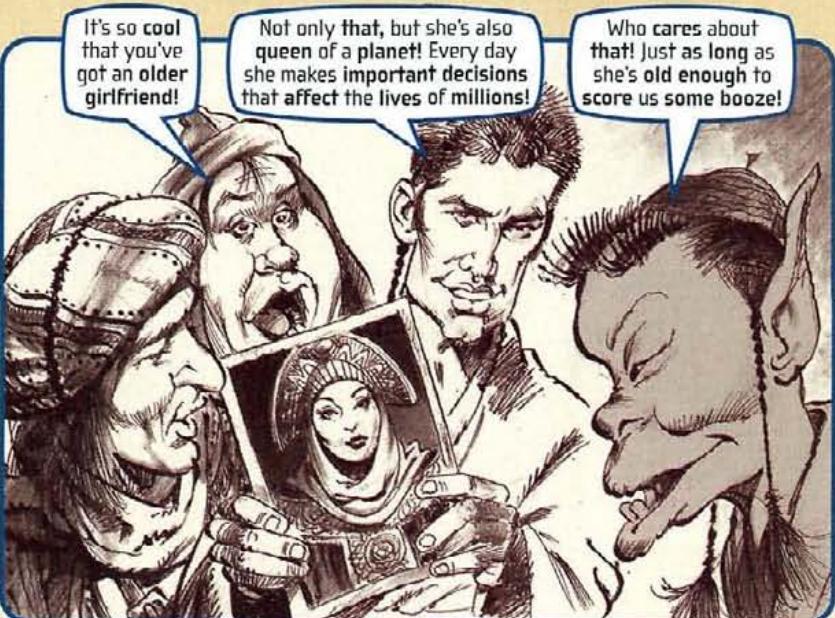

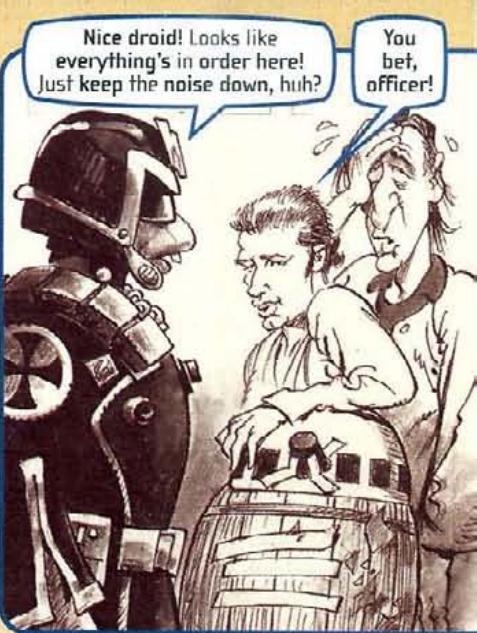

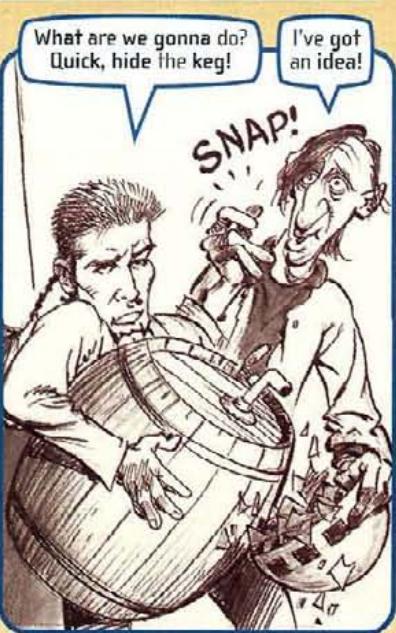

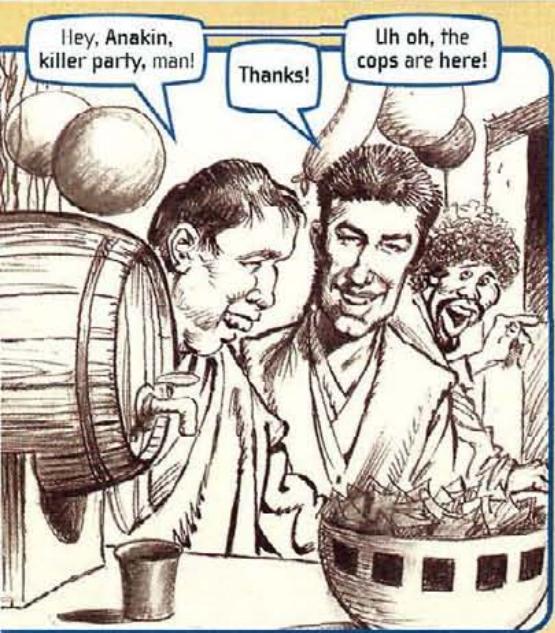

But these games are great! I can stage huge battles, race pods, fly spaceships, duel in hand-to-hand combat, even kill innocent people senselessly, without any consequences!

Indeed! I'm worried about the long-term effects that constantly playing these games will have on you! Games like these can foster all kinds of dangerously violent, antisocial tendencies!

Gimme a break! It's not like a little video game's gonna make me want to murder an entire planet or something!

HEY LUCAS OVER DEPT.

In Star Wars Episode I, George Lucas included E.T. in the Republic Senate scene as a tip of the hat to his compadre Steven Spielberg. Next, the princes of pop, 'N Sync, almost managed to worm their way into Star Wars Episode III!

But that's just the tip of the iceberg, as we found out when we took a close... close look at...

WHO'S IN THE CROWD IN

Howard the Duck

A bitter Lucas still harbors fantasies of turning this ill-conceived character into a Saturday morning cartoon.

Jaws

Lucas is paying off a Super Bowl bet to his buddy Spielberg by including the famous Great White in this scene.

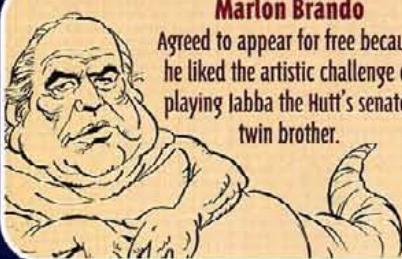

The corpse of Alec Guinness

Hey, who cares if he's dead. In Hollywood, a contract is a contract.

Marlon Brando

Agreed to appear for free because he liked the artistic challenge of playing labba the Hutt's senator twin brother.

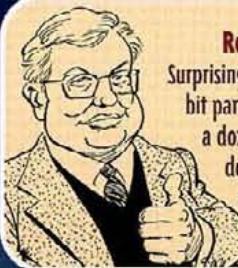

William Shatner

Confused actor showed up on set, Lucas felt sorry for him and let him stay.

Roger Ebert

Surprisingly, Ebert chose this bit part in the movie over a dozen Krispy Kreme donuts in exchange for a "thumbs up" review.

Dick Cheney

Desperate to line up any nation's support for an attack on Iraq.

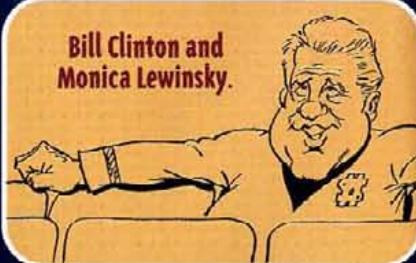

Anthony (George Lucas' Gardener)

For this, George gets 20% off next year's "edging and mowing" bill.

Bill Clinton and Monica Lewinsky.

Michelin Man, Pillsbury Doughboy, M&M, Ronald McDonald

Halle Berry

There to make sure "the door" doesn't close again on women of color, even if that color is green, blue or lavender.

Carrot Top

Lucas hired him because he looks like a space alien without the need for makeup.

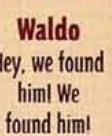

Ted Koppel

Exploring a movie career now that it's all but certain he'll soon be out on his ass at ABC.

Millionaire Dennis Tito

Last year he paid his way onto the International Space Station. Now, a few million to Lucas buys him this.

Waldo

Hey, we found him! We found him!

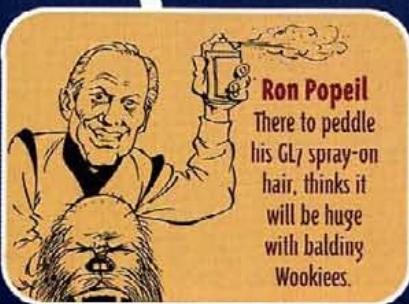

Celine Dion

Admitted by Senate security who mistakenly mistook her for Jar Jar Binks.

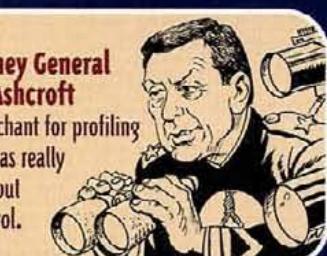

The View's Star Jones

Making a guest cameo as Jabba the Hutt's senator twin sister.

Ron Popeil

There to peddle his GL spray-on hair, thinks it will be huge with balding Wookiees.

Attorney General John Ashcroft

His penchant for profiling aliens has really gotten out of control.

There's a famous saying that goes something like, "Those who fail to learn from history are doomed to repeat it." Well, we couldn't help but notice that a long time ago, in a galaxy far, far away, a lot of things happened that are awfully similar to what's going on now in the "war on terror." Okay, we'll admit that the Star Wars series is actually fictional, but still — some of the parallels are more frightening than Jake Lloyd's performance as Anakin in The Phantom Menace! Don't believe us? Then check out these...

ately, Bar Mitzvahs have become big business! Families are shelling out millions of shekels for entertainment and hiring bigger and bigger stars to play the Bar Mitzvah circuit. In recent years, comedian Jackie Mason has performed at Bar Mitzvahs (go figure), but so has the rap group D12, the rock band Cake, and even the almighty 'N Sync! Which makes us wonder...

WHAT IF CHRIS ROCK PERFORMED AT A

I'm so glad to be here at Adam Marmelstein's Bar Mitzvah! This is a reverent and sacred occasion! Hey, Adam, Mazel Tov, ya dumb cracker!

Adam, I saw you this morning at the temple, gettin' your prayer on! It was like Amateur Night at the Apollo! When your voice cracked, I thought Sandman was gonna sweep your ass off the stage! Hey! You're a man now! You're supposed to sound like Barry White, not Barry Manilow!

When they told me I was booked at a Jewish religious ceremony, I thought it was a circumcision! Then I thought, that can't be right 'cause you old White folks would NEVER let a Black man in a room with a knife!

I wanna thank Rabbi Katz for introducing me! Rabbis are a lot like pimps, don't you know; they both wear fuzzy hats and hold positions of power in their community! But the difference IS, you won't ever hear a rabbi say, "Man, I wish these ho's would just back the f up off me!" At least not in public!

BAR MITZVAH?

I notice the chefs here have killed your chicken dinner themselves! If you really wanted to kill that chicken, you should've just sent it to the 'hood with a wad of cash under its wing! There's a lotta crime in the 'hood! I think all the Black-on-Black crime has got to stop. You Jews don't have no Jew-on-Jew crime; the closest thing you've got is Richard Lewis ripping off Woody Allen's "I'm depressed" act!

I like how y'all open the door every Passover for Elijah! Up on Fordham Road, we don't open the door for nobody unless they have a search warrant!

Before we started, Adam's grandfather was talking to me in Yiddish! Yiddish! That's like the Jewish Jive talk, or as I call it, "Hebonics"!

Here I am, a Black man at a restricted club. Not only couldn't I be a member of this place, I couldn't flag down a cab to take me here!

When I got here today, Rabbi Katz gave me a yarmulke and told me to put it on! At first, I was shocked; I thought it was one of Lil' Kim's pasties!

You know, I got really excited 'cause I heard someone say that Ol' Dirty Bastard was in the house! Then I realized that it was just Mrs. Goldfarb talking about her ex-husband!

To finish things up, the band is now going to play Havah Nagilah! Havah Nagilah — That's a catchy song! I'm waitin' for the P. Diddy remix! Now that'd be a switch — Imagine a Black record producer making money off a Jewish songwriter!

MR. FIX-IT

Tackles your Occult and Paranormal Home Repair Problems

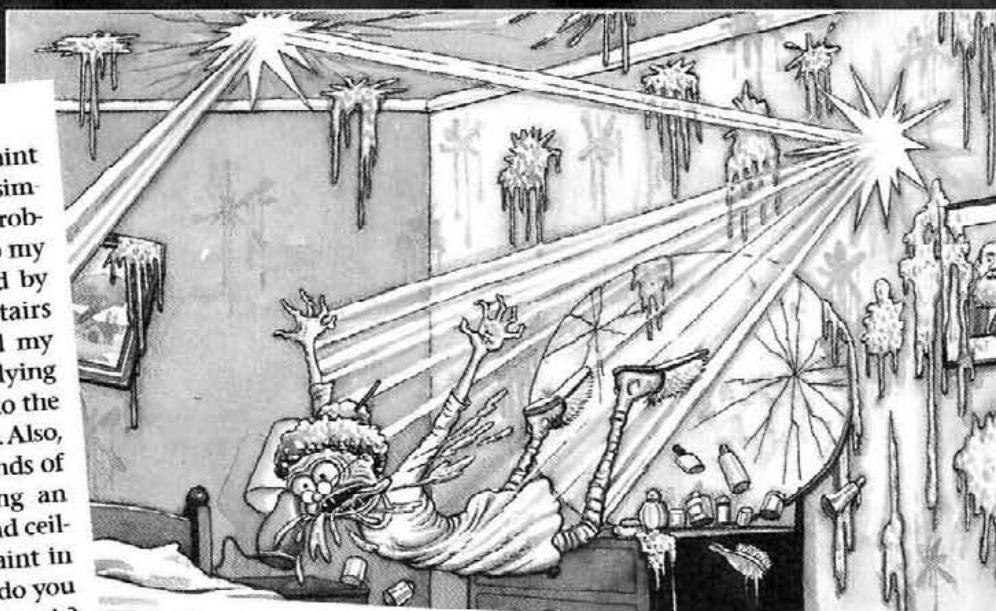

ARTIST: JAMES WARHOLA

WRITER: P.C. VEY

Dear Mr. Fix-It —

My wife and I are planning to paint the interior of our home. It's a simple job with only one major problem that I can foresee. We keep my grandmother, who is possessed by demons, in one of the upstairs bedrooms. The furniture and my grandmother are constantly flying all over the room, banging into the walls and making a real racket. Also, she constantly spits up all kinds of smelly snot and pus leaving an awful residue on the walls and ceiling. Is there a safe way to paint in such an environment? If so, do you think two coats will be enough? I have enclosed a picture of the smelly snot and pus.

Signed,
Covered in Smelly Snot and Pus

Dear Covered in Smelly Snot and Pus —

Two coats of paint is definitely not enough. Always start with a primer, an undercoat, then two additional coats. In your case I think an oil base paint will have more durability and resist the bodily secretions and potential scuff marks from flying furniture you describe. You are wise to be concerned with safety, as should anyone tackling a home improvement project. You should wear an industrial grade hard hat that meets OSHA requirements. A good pair of ear protectors with a noise reduction rating (NRR) of at least 20 will help drown out most of the ungodly noises and racket. In this situation, you may also want to wear a large Crucifix, especially when working on a ladder.

All The Best, Mr. Fix-It

Dear Mr. Fix-It —

My summer house is built over an ancient Indian burial ground. I can put up with the occasional wobbling staircase, moving furniture and nightly wailing of the desecrated spirits, but recently a thick, black, foul-smelling substance has been oozing up through my drains and out of the faucets. You can imagine how hard it is to use the kitchen or bathroom. I've had to cancel several dinner parties as a result. To top it off, the local repair people are all Native Americans and refuse to help me fix the problem. Please find enclosed a snapshot of some of the sludge. I've collected it in one of our wine glasses so as not to have it appear as disgusting as it really is.

Signed, Baffled in the Country

Dear Baffled in the Country —

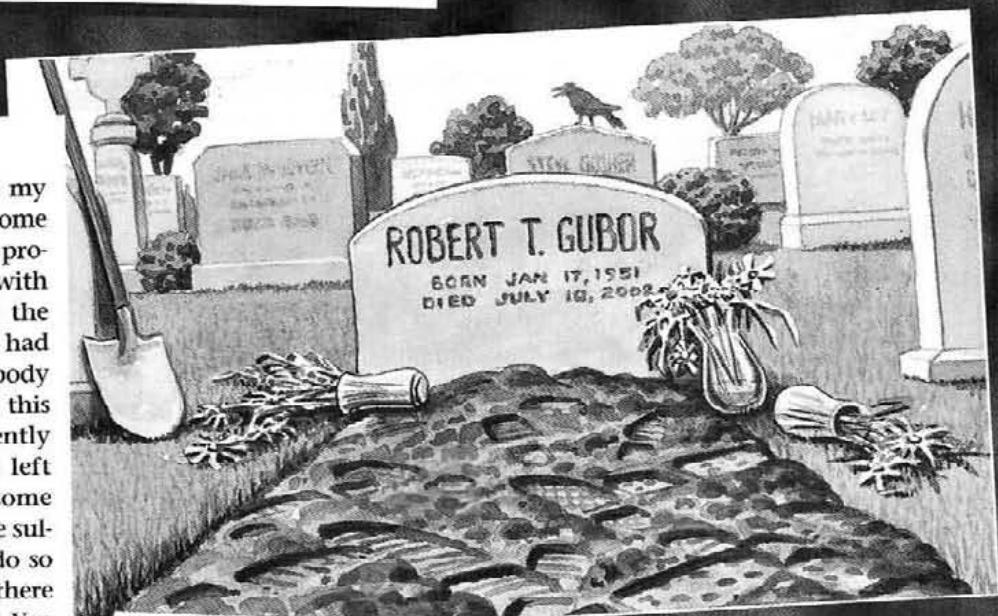

Yours is a common problem. Have a sample of the sludge checked to see if it is merely a backed-up septic tank or the decomposed, violated remains of once-proud indigenous peoples. If it is a septic backup, calling a professional septic tank cleaning service is your easiest solution. Come to think of it, if the sludge is Indian remains, call in the septic tank cleaning service too. That's your name on the deed and you can do with your property whatever you want.

All The Best, Mr. Fix-It

Dear Mr. Fix-It —

I recently volunteered the use of my brand new home for a séance with some close friends. Halfway through the proceeding, we actually made contact with the deceased husband of one of the women there. Somehow he knew I had been boinking his wife while his body was still warm in the grave. Well, this guy went medieval all over my recently refinished hardwood floors. He left scrapes, scratches, gouges and some kind of burn marks that smell like sulfur. I don't know how he could do so much damage, since he was barely there being from the spirit world and all. You could see right through him, for Christ's sake! Anyway, the estimate for repair and refinishing was through the roof, which is where my blood pressure is quickly going. Is there a cheap and easy way I can do the job myself? I've enclosed a picture of the guy's grave just to show you he's really dead.

Signed, Fit To Be Refinished

Dear Fit To Be Refinished —

Never do things the cheap and easy way. But if you must, a sanding machine can be easily rented at any large hardware or home supply store. Sand with rough (#8), then medium (#12), then fine grit (#15) pads in that order. There should be no problems except for one: rented sanding machines are easily possessed by the spirits of irate dead husbands, or at least behave that way. Make sure whomever conducted the séance properly banished the spirit from your premises, and allow for adequate ventilation in the sanding area. If you plan on having more séances there, consider carpeting.

All The Best, Mr. Fix-It

MR. FIX-IT Tackles your Occult and Paranormal Home Repair Problems

Dear Mr. Fix-It —

It was only after I had closed on my house and moved in that I discovered the hot water heater only works on the witches' sabbath. Since, I'm told, there's only a few of them a year, I fear I might have a lifetime of very few showers and dishwashing opportunities. I'm not particularly concerned about the showers, but my dishes were inherited from my mother and have great sentimental value. I just hate to see them gather so much crusty old food. Is there a way to coax the witches to come to my basement more frequently? I've enclosed a photo of the hot water heater.

Signed, Dirty and Cold

Dear Dirty and Cold —

Your photo indicates that what you have there is a good old-fashioned cauldron and not a hot water heater at all. I'm guessing you're a first-time homeowner. These days cauldrons are hard to come by and yours looks like it's 100% cast iron. The proper care and maintenance of a cauldron is very time consuming and expensive and could be dangerous if you don't know what you're doing. I suggest you take it to Sears to their Wiccan-goods department and trade it in for a 45 gallon electric water heater — one that isn't filled with newt's eyes and bat's blood. Sears was doing that for a while until the FTC cracked down.

All The Best, Mr. Fix-It

Dear Mr. Fix-It —

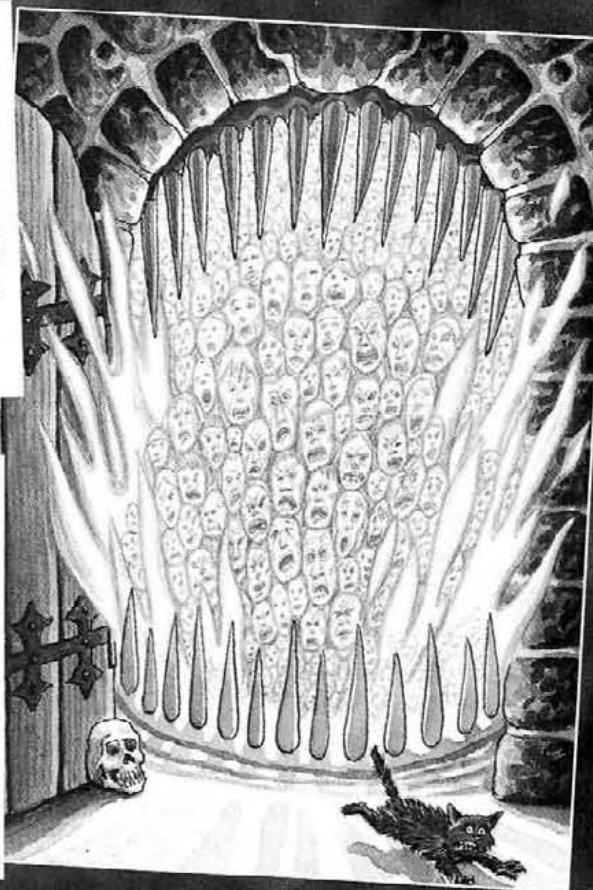

While repairing some water damage in the basement I found what appeared to be the doorway to Hell. At first I thought it was a door to a root cellar or something, but when I opened the thing...well, you wouldn't believe it! I came face to face with all the pain and suffering of the eternally damned; weeping and gnashing of teeth, a burning agony like I've never seen in my entire life. I'd like to know if there's any way of harnessing some of that energy and directing it into my home heating system? If I can do this I think I might be able to save a bundle on fuel costs this winter. I've enclosed a photo of the door.

Signed, Soon To Be Toasty Warm

Dear Soon To Be Toasty Warm —

In this era of soaring energy costs and a growing conservation movement, yours is an excellent idea. If you have central heating, the answer may be as simple as running a flexible aluminum heating duct from your newly-found Portal to Hades directly into your system's heat exchanger where it can flow to the vents located throughout your home. If your system is electrically-fired, a solar panel could conceivably convert the energy from the flames licking at the flesh of the everlastingly tormented souls into a virtually inexhaustible supply of usable current. By the way, I think the government offers some substantial tax breaks for those who not only save energy, but use alternative energy sources wisely.

All The Best, Mr. Fix-It

Dear Mr. Fix-It —

I think my house might be alive. I can't tell for sure, but whenever I hammer a nail into the wall, I hear a moaning sound or sometimes a whimper. Can this be possible? I've sent along a photo of the house taken last spring after a new paint job.

Signed, Scared Property Owner

Dear Scared Property Owner —

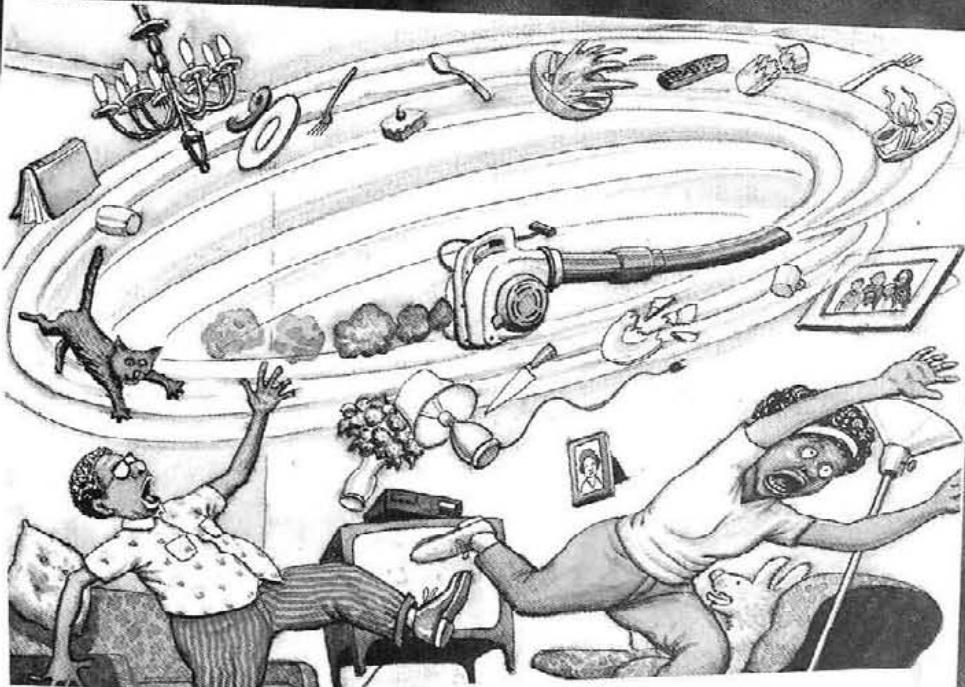

One sure way to tell if your house is alive is to plant a series of plastic explosives at all the major supporting beams and then set them off. If you hear a real loud yell, then your house was alive. If you decide to rebuild, I suggest you use lumber pressure treated with chromated copper arsenate, as nothing can live through the treating process. But just to make sure, drill holes into all the tender joints. If you hear no complaints, simply fill the holes with construction grade wood putty, let dry, then sand as necessary.

All The Best, Mr. Fix-It

Dear Mr. Fix-It —

My leaf blower is haunted by the ghost of its previous owner. Since I live in an apartment in the middle of a large city, one would think I have no need for a leaf blower, which is true, but it's haunted nonetheless. Whenever I flip the "on" switch a light flashes on the side panel. I'm sure this is being done by the specter of the previous owner because his widow, who I bought the thing from, told me he died as a result of leaf inhalation. So who else could be haunting it? Two more signs it's haunted: besides making an ear-shattering noise when in use, it also flies around the room knocking over and breaking things. Enclosed find a Polaroid of my leaf-free apartment.

Signed, Leafless

Dear Leafless—

Have you checked the manual? Sometimes a flashing light indicates the leaf blower is "on," which may explain why it only happens when you turn the unit "on." Placing the blower in a magic circle composed of dirty, dry, dead leaves may eliminate the phantom apparition, but I assure you, this being a leaf blower, the ear-shattering noise and flying around the room will continue.

If you want to make a good, suspenseful movie, it seems rather obvious that you need a bold, clever idea and a smart, tightly-crafted script. But if all you have is a weak premise about a woman and her kid locked in some fortified area of their expensive Manhattan brownstone, then you have no compelling plot, no suspense, no on-the-edge-of-their-seat audiences. What you have is the...

PANIC RUINED

This townhouse features a "Panic Room," a super fortified hiding place! Notice the high-tech Sony security cameras stationed all over the house, connected to a bank of Sony TV monitors and Sony video tape machines loaded with Sony video tape! It was built to protect the occupants from undesirables, namely JVC, Panasonic, Sharp, and the other Sony competitors! As a Sony company production, this movie elevates product placement to an art form!

This is the perfect place for you and your son...er, daughter...er, your androgynous offspring! There's no other townhouse like this in all of New York City — high ceilings, hardwood floors and the possibility of discovering millions of dollars rumored to have been stashed away somewhere by the previous millionaire owner! And it's in great shape considering his greedy family never bothered to take the place apart to find the stash! So offer the sellers their asking price, and this place can be yours!

Offer the asking price, just like that? You never offer the asking price on anything! I'm spending my ex-husband's money and I want to make sure I'm depleting it fast so his new girlfriend gets only the worst part of the deal — him! I say double the asking price and make everyone happy — except my $@#&* ex!

I see what you mean when you said there's no other townhouse like this one in all of New York City! The elevator stops at five floors, yet it's only a three-story building! I just hope it's big enough! There's plenty of room for me to ride my scooter, but when I'm a little older and get a car, driving around in here might be a little tight!

It's our first night here and everything is still in boxes, so I hope you don't mind that I sent out for pizza!

No problem, mom! I know once we unpack, you'll use the microwave and make frozen pizza! You make the best home-warmed food in the world!

Thanks, dear! Your father never appreciated my food warming skills! He will, now that I've got a new recipe for bankrupting him! Let's enjoy these different cable channels! I just hope they're not showing Home Alone, a totally unbelievable movie about bungling goons breaking into a home they thought was empty!

What the hell is going on? We've been planning to rob this empty house for weeks, and the day of the robbery, someone moves in! I took this job under one condition! That nobody gets hurt! Let me clarify that! That I, me, yours truly, Numero Uno — doesn't get hurt! The Professional Safe Cracker's Association has a lousy medical plan!

Trust me! This is even better than we planned! We were going to enter this empty house and steal all the cash hidden in the safe in the panic room! Now we can steal that and some of the stuff the new owners have in those boxes! I can use a new toaster oven and a coffee machine!

I don't care what we do! I only came along on this heist to act moody and do some neurotic schtick! But it's obvious I'm the only smart one here! I brought a mask! I can keep my identity a secret! That way I'll be able to find work in other movies after this bomb bites the big one!

Why did you bring a third person in on this deal? We agreed it was a job for two!

We can have much better arguments with three than with two! Ghoul's so loosely strung, we never know what he might do! It's suspenseful and makes for better viewing on the security monitors!

Who are you calling loosely strung? The next person who says that gets a bullet in the head! I'm a certified homicidal psychopath and I want to be treated with respect!

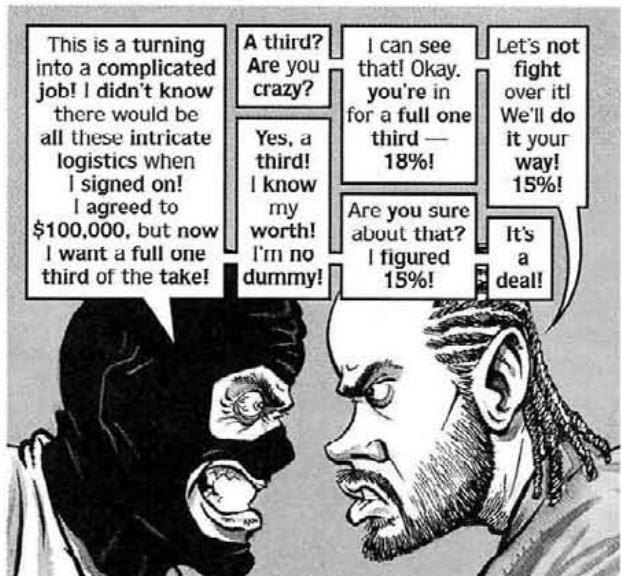

That's one project out of the way! The phone's hooked up!

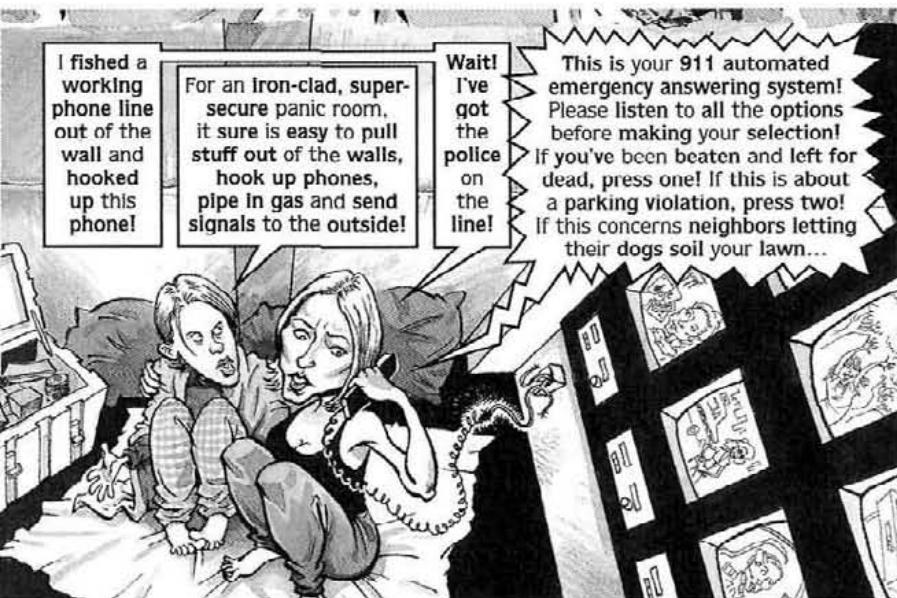

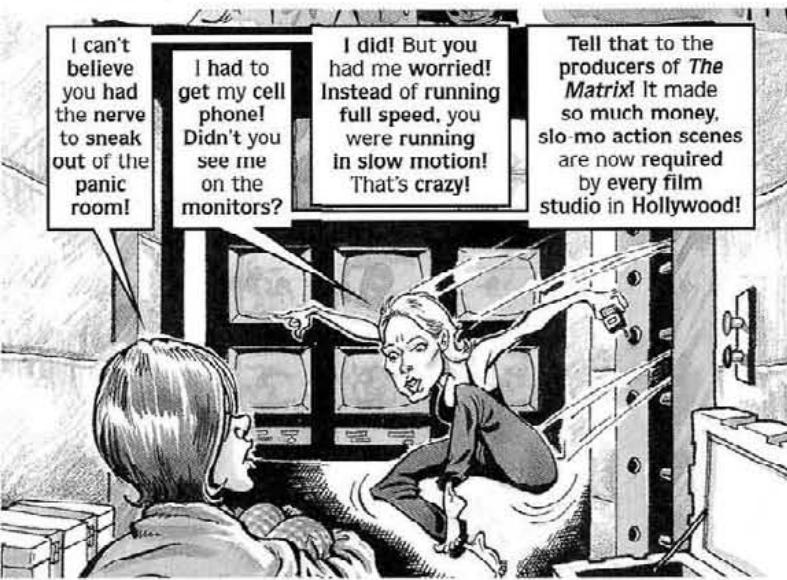

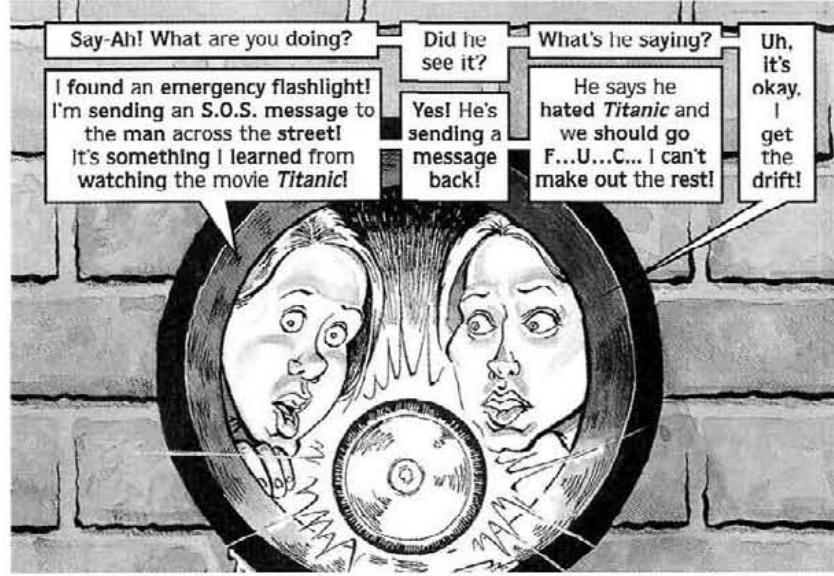

And the stereo sounds good! So it's actually two projects out of the way!

The stereo isn't hooked up! It's still in the carton!

Uh oh! That means the ominous music is from the film's soundtrack! Something bad is coming up!

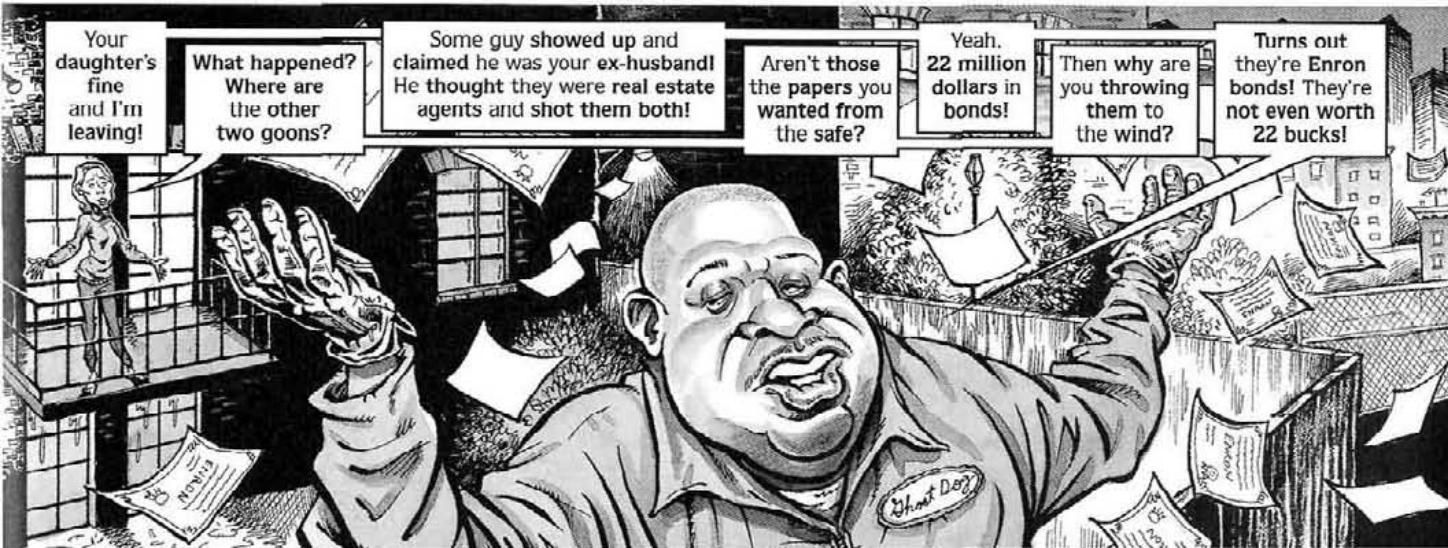

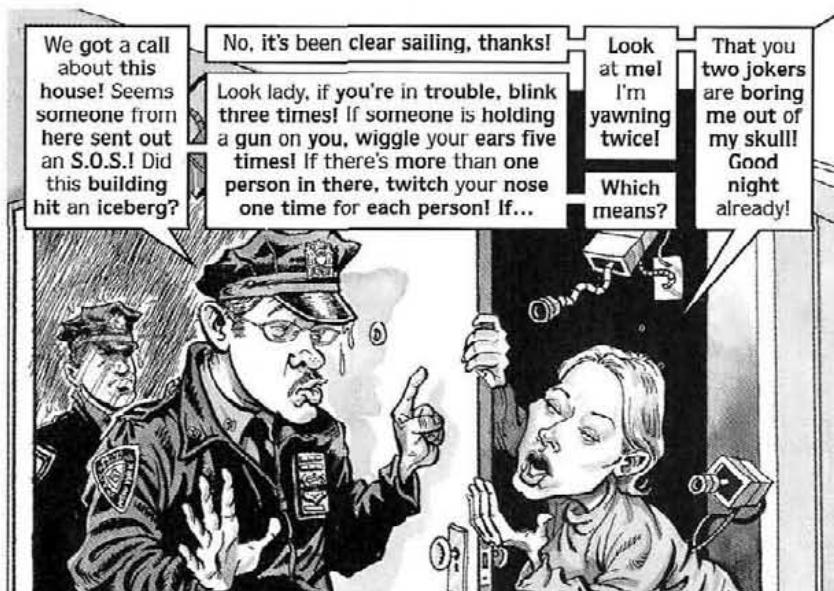

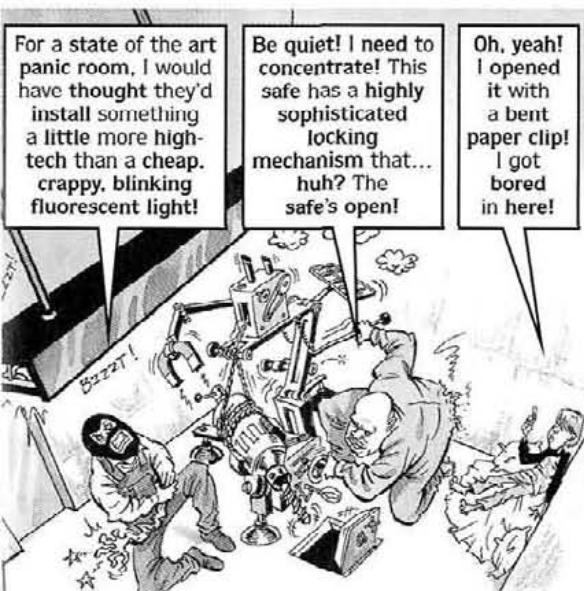

Mom, I'm going into a coma! Don't forget, I'm suffering from BFMD — Bad Formula Movie Disease! That means I'm programmed to have an attack at the most inopportune moment, like now!

Great! A seizure gives me a chance to do that whole "sneak-out-of-here" scene again! But this time instead of the cell phone, my excuse is so I can get your medicine! Obviously, Larry, Moe and Curly out there won't catch me this time, either!

This job is going down the drain! We're finally in the panic room and the kid is having a seizure! Worse yet, her mom's out there talking to the cops!

Deal! But only if you have medical coverage! Not only will we get what's in the safe, but we can make a bundle by overcharging your insurance company for giving you the shot, just like real doctors do!
